Miniatures are Moneymakers

"Pixie" edging a bed of Roses

Fads pay. They start talking . . . . and buying. One woman tells another . . . . and profits begin to climb. The most powerful sales stimulus is word-of-mouth advertising.

Women are crazy about Miniature Roses. They talk about them. They make exhibits of them. They crowd Flower Shows to see them. They advertise . . . . and buy . . . . Miniatures.

Don’t miss this market. Fads pass. Sell now, while the fever’s on. Order today—supply limited.

3" pots, immediate or spring delivery.

○ PIXIE. A Red Circle Rose
(de Vink) White. Patent 408. The Conard-Pyle Company
Pixie, pictured above, provides the most up-to-the-minute edging. With compact growth (6-9") and abundant, continuous bloom, it is ideal for the purpose. Plant 6 to 8 inches apart. In addition, the plants will provide dainty white miniature cut blooms which last for the dining table, invalid tray or shut-in.

Retail: 75¢ each; 3 for $1.88
Wholesale: 45¢ each; 10 for $4.00; 100 for $35.

○ BABY GOLD STAR. A Red Circle Rose
With streamlined buds, Baby Gold Star is the only golden yellow Rose suitable for miniature arrangements. The rich green foliage makes an ideal foil for the 20 petaled blooms. The plant is slightly larger than PIXIE and its flowers are just right for earrings, hair ornaments and bracelets.

Retail: 75¢ each; 3 for $1.88
Wholesale: 45¢ each; 10 for $4.00; 100 for $35.
From FLORISTS EXCHANGE—May 24, 1941

The striking exhibit of the Conard-Pyle Co. at the Philadelphia Flower Show this March, a formal garden of miniature Roses in full bloom, was masterly recognition of a present-day fad which must not be ignored. People are crazy about miniatures. They buy innumerable tiny figures in shops, representing creatures of every kind and description, and mount them on display in their homes for family and friends to examine. Garden clubs specialize in miniatures—tiny receptacles containing little sprays of flowers. Rock gardens pay less attention to large masses of floral display, and more to dainty little flowering things. One thing after another is brought into prominence, and if it is tiny, its praises are sung. Miniature Roses have an ardent appeal. Conard-Pyle’s garden display is said to have attracted crowds all day long. Their little Rose plants are perfect miniatures of those of usual size, and the public gloats over them in much the same spirit as they would over jewels of splendor. To develop or harbor a fad is a good commercial enterprise.

3” pots, immediate or spring delivery.

○ MIDGET. A Red Circle Rose
New color in miniatures—cerise-rose. Plants and blooms similar to Tom Thumb. Newest variety, introduced Fall 1940.
Retail: $1.00 each; 3 for $2.50
Wholesale: 60¢ each; 10 for $5.50; 100 for $50.

○ TOM THUMB. A Red Circle Rose
Tom Thumb, the variety which brought about the craze for miniatures, won its way at national and other Flower Shows. It leads the procession with deep crimson flower and dainty foliage almost as attractive.
Retail: 75¢ each; 3 for $1.88
Wholesale: 45¢ each; 10 for $4.00; 100 for $35.

ROULETTI
Pink. Sometimes called “Fairy Chinese Rose”.
This original Miniature Rose is a rock garden gem with rose-pink blooms. Healthy and hardy, it blooms continuously. The quite double flowers are an inch or more in diameter. It is a gem for rockeries, for edging, and for children’s gardens.
Retail: 50¢ each; 3 for $1.25
Wholesale: 30¢ each; 10 for $2.50; 100 for $20.
Countess Vandal is contrasted with blooms of the white miniature gem, Pixie, shown in a 1¼" high vase.
